

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

May 7, 2013

Rocky Point Park now home to PCT Performance Stage

PORT MOODY – The City of Port Moody and Pacific Coast Terminals are proud to announce a partnership to nurture arts and culture in our community. As a result, Rocky Point Park is now home to the PCT Performance Stage, an outdoor bandshell located in the heart of the park.

Pacific Coast Terminals has committed $35,000 over the next ten years to support the use of the stage by local bands and music groups during the summer months.

“In partnering with Pacific Coast Terminals, we’re enhancing a vibrant cultural space for artists,” said Mayor Mike Clay. “Rocky Point Park is an incredibly popular destination to begin with and it’s going to come alive with music this summer. As the City of the Arts, we’re happy to have PCT on board to help enrich our public spaces.”

Ken Catton, Vice-President and General Manager of the terminals remarked “As the founding sponsor of the Summer Sunday Concert Series, we wanted to build on the success of that event and promote further music entertainment in Rocky Point Park. We are proud to provide financial support for local artists to use the stage to showcase their talent.

We’re inviting the public to come down to Rocky Point Park for the kick-off of the seventh season of the Pacific Coast Terminals Summer Sunday Concert Series at 2pm on July 7th. There’s free R&B, soul and funk in the park every Sunday in July and August. See www.summersundays.ca for a full lineup of artists.

- 30 -

Cutline: PCT Terminal Manager Wade Leslie, Port Moody Mayor Mike Clay, PCT General Manager Ken Catton, George Balzer of Summer Sunday Concert Series and City General Manager of Development Services Tim Savoie

Port Moody – City of the Arts – is home to over 34,000 residents. The vibrant waterfront city values its natural environment and heritage character, embraces sustainability and is committed to community engagement. Founded in 1913, Port Moody’s historical ties to railway and lumber industries have given way to arts and service based businesses. With over one-third of its land mass dedicated as parkland, Port Moody is a desirable place to live in British Columbia’s Lower Mainland.

Pacific Coast Terminals Co. Ltd. - is a terminal operator in the Port Metro Vancouver, and acts as the link between ship and shore for Western Canadian resource companies and their global markets. PCT operates the world's largest and most automated export sulphur marine terminal in the world and also handles bulk liquids. PCT loads more than two million tonnes of sulphur and close to one million tonnes of bulk liquids each year onto more than 100 vessels.

Media Contact: Ken Catton, Vice President

Pacific Coast Terminals

Tel: 604-931-9250

Email: ken.catton@pct.ca

Media Contact: Leslyn Johnson, Communications Advisor

Tel: 604.469.4535

Email: ljohnson@portmoody.ca